AN ELOQUENT TRIBUTE

By the Hon. Elihu Root, Temporary Chairman of the Republican National Convention

PAID TO McKINLEY AND ROOSEVELT

Mr. McKinley Was Wise and Skillful, Mr. Roosevelt Is True, Sincere, and Courageous.

The following tribute to Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt is taken from the address delivered by Hon. Elihu Root as temporary chairman of the republican national convention at Chicago, Tuesday, June 21, 1904:

PRÉSIDENT MCKINLEY.
No dividing line can be drawn athwart the course of this successful administration. The fatal 14th of September, 1901, marked no change of policy, no lower level of achievement. The bullet of the assassin robbed us of the friend we loved; it took away from the people the President of their choice; it deprived civilization of a potent force making always for righteousness and for humanity. But the fabric of free institutions remained unshaken. The government of the people went on. The great party that William McKinley led, wrought still in the spirit of his example. His true and loyal successor has been equal to the burden cast upon him. Widely different in temperament and methods, he has approved himself of the same elemental virtues—the same fundamental beliefs. With faithful and revering memory, he has executed the purposes and continued unbroken the policy of President McKinley for the peace, prosperity and honor of our beloved country. And he has met all new occasions with strength and resolution and far-sighted wisdom.

As we gather in this convention, our hearts go back to the friend—the never to be forgotten friend—whom when last we met we acclaimed with one accord as our universal choice to bear a second time the highest honor in the nation's gift; and back still, memory goes through many a year of leadership and loyalty. How wise and how skillful he was! How modest and self-effacing! How deep his insight into the human heart! How swift the intuitions of his sympathy! How compelling the charm of his gracious presence! He was so unselfish, so thoughtful of the happiness of others, so genuine a lover of his country and his kind. And he was the kindest and tenderest friend who ever grasped another's hand. Alas, that his virtues did plead in vain against cruel fate!

Yet we may rejoice, that while he lived he was crowned with honor; that the rancor of party strife had ceased; that success in his great task—the restoration of peace, the approval of his countrymen, the affection of his friends—gave the last quiet months in his home at Canton repose and contentment.

And with McKinley we remember Hanna with affection and sorrow—his great lieutenant. They are together again.

PRÉSIDENT ROOSEVELT.
But we turn as they would have us turn, to the duties of the hour, the hopes of the future; we turn as they would have us turn, to prepare ourselves for struggle under the same standard borne in other hands by right of true inheritance. Honor, truth, courage, purity of life, domestic virtue, love of country, loyalty to high ideals—all these combined with active intelligence, with learning, with experience in affairs, with the conclusive proof of competency afforded by wise and conservative administration, by great things already done and great results already achieved—all these we bring to the people with another candidate. Shall not these have honor in our land?

Truth, sincerity, courage!—these underlie the fabric of our institutions. Upon hypocrisy and sham, upon cunning and false pretense, upon weakness and cowardice, upon the arts of the demagogue and the devices of the mere politician—no government can stand. No system of popular government can endure in which the people do not believe and trust. Our President has taken the whole people into his confidence. Incapable of deception, he has put aside concealment. Frankly and without reserve, he has told them what their government was doing, and the reasons. It is no campaign of appearances upon which we enter, for the people know the good and the bad, the success and failure, to be credited and charged to our account. It is no campaign of sounding words and specious pretenses, for our President has told the people with frankness what he believed and what he intended. He has meant every word he said, and the people have believed every word he said, and with him this convention agrees because every word has been sound Republican doctrine. No people can maintain free government who do not in their hearts value the qualities which have made the present President of the United States conspicuous among the men of his time as a type of noble manhood. Come what may here—come what may in November, God grant that those qualities of brave, true manhood shall have honor throughout America, shall be held for an example in every home, and that the youth of generations to come may grow up to feel that it is better than wealth, or office, or power, to have the honesty, the purity and the courage of Theodore Roosevelt.

YANKEE-TURKISH ADMIRAL.

Young American Skipper High In the Sultan's Favor.

Captain R. D. Buckman, who became widely acquainted in marine circles several years ago when master of whaleback steamers that ran to Norfolk, Va., is now a vice admiral in the Turkish navy at a salary of $10,000 a year.

Captain Buckman was selected by the Cramps to take the Turkish cruiser Medjidia from Hampton Roads to Constantinople, where the sultan became personally interested in him and induced him to remain in the service. In addition to his rank of vice admiral the fortunate young American mariner is also on the staff of the sultan as his personal aid. He has also been given a free hand in any reforms which he may decide to make in the navy.

Confessions of a Priest.

Rev. Jno. S. Cox, of Wake, Ark., writes, "For 12 years I suffered from yellow jaundice. I consulted a number of physicians and tried all sorts of medicines but got no relief. Then I began the use of Electric Bitters and feel that I am now cured of a disease that had me in its grasp for twelve years." If you want a reliable medicine for liver and kidney trouble, stomach disorder or general debility, get Electric Bitters. It's guaranteed by all druggists. Only 50c.

Not a Violent Case.

"What would you do if I were to die?" asked Mrs. Enneke, who was under the doctor's care. "It would almost drive me crazy," answered the other fraction of the combine. "Would you marry again?" she asked. "Oh, no," he replied, "I don't think I would be as crazy as that."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Minister's Boy.

Mother—What! Fighting again? Such a black eye! If you would only follow the lead of the minister's little boy.—Tommy—I did try to, but he led agen with his right, an' dat's where he biffed me.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Sour Stomach

"I used Cascarets and feel like a new man. I have been a sufferer from dyspepsia and sour stomach for the last two years. I have been taking medicine and other drugs, but could get no relief only for a short time. I will recommend Cascarets to my friends as the only thing for indigestion and sour stomach and to keep the bowels in good condition. They are very nice to eat."

SOAP IN THE GINGERBREAD.

A Product of the Maine Forest Which Is Regarded by the Lumbermen as Very Good.

"Did ye ever eat hot gingerbread with soap in it?" asked Frank Brown, the oldest camp cook on the West Branch, who, according to the New York Sun, boasts that he has made more than 2,000 barrels of flour into cream of tartar bread in the course of 26 winters in the forest. "Ef ye hain't e't it, you don't know what's good."

"Why, a lumberman would not more think of eating gingerbread without soap into it than he would think of drinking new rum without molasses. They always go together—soap into the gingerbread and molasses into the rum, and both are jest about as good as is made."

"My rule is to dissolve a hunk of hard soap as big as a hen's egg in a gallon of water, then pour in a gallon of molasses, a half pound of baking powder and stir in the flour until the dough will almost run. Then grease yer pans, slap in the mixture and chuck it into a red-hot oven."

"When it comes out all golden brown and full of sweet bubbles that smoke when you break them open—the man who won't eat such food isn't fit to live or die."

"You can't tell me that soap gingerbread ain't fit to eat. I've eat it more than 25 years, and I'm jest as sound to-day as I was when I first tasted the food."

A Long Line.

"Young Bragley is our sporting editor now," said Spaceryte, of the Howler. "Succeeded his father, you know."

"Seems to run in the family, eh?"

"Oh, yes! Why, Bragley claims that one of his ancestors was sporting editor of Addison's Spectator."

He Lost Out.

"Yes, suh, he wuz 'fraid er de banks bustin' on 'im, en he buried his money."

"Is he got it yet?"

"No; he forgot ter blaze de tree whar it wuz, en de man what owned de lan' put up a sign. 'No Trespassin' on These Groun's!'"—Atlanta Constitution.

Unappreciative.

"Did you ever read a paper at our literary society?" asked the young woman with a frowning brow.

"No," answered the matter-of-fact matron. "But I've seen times when I would have enjoyed reading a paper or a magazine instead of listening to what was going on."—Washington Star.

When to Retreat.

There are times when the bravest man must admit that discretion is the better part of valor. It never yet paid anybody to dispute the right of way with a polecat.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

BOWLEGS BARRED.

Uncle Sam's Soldiers Must Have Straight Underpinnings.

Major Galbraith, recruiting officer for the United States army, and Colonel Thomas of the Eleventh cavalry, stationed at Fort Des Moines, are authority for the statement that bowlegged men will hereafter be barred from the army.

The purpose of this order, which emanates from the war department, is explained on the ground that a bowlegged man cannot withstand a hard march as successfully as his comrade with symmetrical extremities. Hitherto it has been customary to admit bowlegged men to the cavalry regiments and to regard it as a point in their favor, but service in the American-Spanish war showed that cavalrymen do much dismounted service.
